by the President is the Selection of a Nan For Muraey General Se That Both Sommations May Be Made Simultaneomit Mr. Olney's Career. WASHINGTON, June 5 .- There is no longer any reasonable doubt but that the president has fully determined to ask Olney that this was his purpose. To ather members of his cabinet, however, it is learned that he has stated in substance that he should ask Mr. Olney to accept the place, and that he was delaying the public announcement in order that he might at the same time name a successor to Mr. Olney as attorney gen-

RICHARD OLNEY. Samething About the Man Who Is to Re

Richard Olney, who is now in all probability to be advanced to the first place in President Cleveland's cabinet, has won this distinction by the able service he has thus far rendered the president on all the more important questions that have engaged public attention since the present administration

During the great strike at Chicago Mr. Oluey's services were particularly notable. He developed each step that the government authorities took, and President Cleveland was so fully convinced of the wisdom of the proposed policy that he gave it thorough support and execution. In this question Mr. Olney was impelled by a desire to suppress disorder. He had shown in another case his studere respect for the rights of labor. This was in a case of the Reading railroad, which sought to compel one of its employes to either sever his connection with a railway beneficial organization or the company's service. Although the government had no direct interest in the case, Mr. Olney secured the permission of the court to prewhich he held that the proposed action of the company was against justice and

ing its interests, so long as the same were perceful and within the law. The new secretary of state comes from Thomas Olney, came from England and settled in Salem, Mass., in 1785. The father of Richard Olney owned and managed the cotion mills at Oxford, and also engaged in banking. His mother was a Sigourney, and descended from the French Hugenots, who fied from France to this country. The new secretary of state was graduated from Brown university in 1856, and from the Harvard law school in 1858. He married Agnes, daughter of Judge

Benjamin F. Thomas, with whom he studied law. They have lived of late years at Boston, with summer homes near Buzzard's Bay and Gray Gables, the summer residence of the president. Mr. Olney is a gentleman of fine literary attainments and tastes. Although a close student, he is a lover of outdoor sports, and is a good horseman, an onthusiastic tennis player and a skillful angier. He is a man of medium beight and robust form, and in general appearance he conveys the impression of intense vitality and physical endurance beyond that of any man who bat occupied the position of secretary of scate in recent years. His face is strong, keen and inellectual. Though his manner is somewhat reserved and austere, he nubends readily to the approaches of intimate

Mr. Olney has served one term in the state legislature of Massachusette. In politics he is an old-time Democrat, but he was unable to support Butler for governor. He did not take a prominent part in the last presidential campaign, but rendered effective service to Mr. Cleveland in an unobtrusive manner.

As a lawyer Mr. Olney's success has been that of a counsellor rather than that of an advocate. He is regarded as masterly exponent of the law, relving upon conciseness of expression and clearness of statement rather than upon purely rhetorical effort for the success of his

The local authorities alone can not effect this unless the secretary secures from the shippers of pork to Germany and France (the countries requiring the inspection for triching) voluntary agreements, such as have been made with hippers of beef, mutton, etc., by which the latter agaee to tank such carcasses as do not pass the federal inspection. If such a regulation is put in force, however, it is feared that the pork exporta-

"A whaling story? Well, there's a man here named Phillips, a truck farmer, and of course a winaier. About eight years ago he belonged to one of our boat crews. A big whale was sighted about three miles out, and the usual excitement occurred. Every man of a crew knows his place, and when the alarm is given he drops everything and makes for the beach. "So, at the first cry of 'Whale!' the barber left his half shaved man in the chair, the man driving out of town drove lack again, the storekeeper deserted his customers, and everybody ran.

members of the city council of Lima, Ohio, do not seem to know, or if they know they do not care, how the money of the people is disposed of.
If they will look at Section 1693 of the Revised Statutes of Ohio they will find that—'No contract, agreement or obligation shall be entered into except by an ordinance or resolution of the Council, nor any appropriation of money for any purpose be made except by an ordinance. Every ordinance for appropriating money shall contain an explicit statement of the use and purpose for which the appropriation is made; the power or authority to make a contract, agreclone of this section shall be void against the corporation."

Section 1676 says: "The Council shall have the management and control of the finances and property of the corporation."

Section 1782: "In municipal corporations that have a street commisstoner and civil engineer, these offcers shall perform the duties pre-scribed by this title and such other duties not incompatible with the nature of their offices, as the council may by ordinance require; and each shall receive such compensation for his services by fees or salary or both, as may be provided by ordinance."
